7-8:30 pm Speaker + Q&A

Place: ATLANTIS ACADEMY
10193 NW 31st Coral Springs, FL 33065

We will address “executive functioning” issues such as planning, organizing, and completing tasks such as homework, studying, following directions, chores, and basic life skills. These issues will be discussed from a functional perspective and target why our children experience these challenges. Most importantly, this presentation will discuss specific actions parents, teachers, and professionals can take to help empower “our children” and their families to be less impacted by issues commonly associated with ADHD. A Q&A will be encouraged, so bring a friend and your questions!

SCHEDULED GUEST SPEAKERS

Dr Eric Nach, Ph.D., M.Ed has nearly 25 years experience working with young people with special needs and their families. Dr. Nach is the CEO and primary facilitator of the “Support For Students Growth Center” located in Boca Raton, FL.

Dr. Nach’s experience includes 7 years as a therapist in various Broward County psychiatric hospitals, 7 years as an ESE teacher, and ten years as a special education department chairperson with the Palm Beach County School District. Dr. Nach travels the country as a nationally known speaker/presenter on topics such as; “Improving Behavior and Social Skills in Children, Teens, and Young Adults with Perceptual Differences” to professionals in the field. Dr Nach is in the final stages of writing a book to empower parents and professionals in educating, training and counseling children and adolescents with “special needs” as they navigate the complex transition into the “maze of middle school”.
